- What are your expectations for near-term monetary policy in the U.S. and abroad? What are the major risks to the outlook?
- What underlying factors have driven the decline in market-based measures of inflation expectations in the U.S. and other economies? How persistent are these factors and what does this imply for central banks? How do market-based measures compare with survey-based inflation expectations and what might explain any differences?
- What are your expectations for economic growth in China? What are the key risks to this outlook? How have tensions with the U.S. impacted the outlook?
